

Quotes from our Business Partners

"Anthony was always smart and punctual and I was impressed with his willingness to learn from his colleagues in our business. He is a quiet lad but not without self-confidence and by the end of his placement he came out of his shell and was better able to interact with the team and clients. We enjoyed having him."

Abbey have worked with All Saints for the past 2 years offering mentoring sessions, internships and apprenticeships. We also chair the local advisory board for All Saints to help attract new members to support the Career Academy. The students have shown great enthusiasm and initiative during each session and the staff have been flexible and supportive.

Paul in his time at the WCFT produced a valuable data base collating Agenda for Change information dating back to 2004. This information proves invaluable for the forward planning within the trust and sustainability of the service we provide. Paul attended daily with enthusiasm and found no task to difficult, he also felt comfortable in suggesting ideas for this particular project. I would have no hesitation in employing Paul in the future.

Would just like to say how inspiring I found both teachers, Judith and especially Margaret and how lucky the students are to have such passionate support from their school and teachers. The students were also lively and engaging and a credit to their school. I look forward to helping out in the future.

The RSA internship students for 2013 were very engaged and grew in confidence and competence over the six week period. Each had a clear understanding of what they wanted to gain from their internship and were able to accurately and confidently explain at the end of the period how they had contributed to their respective teams.

As a business leader, I get the opportunity to work with people from all sorts of professional and personal backgrounds. Very few of them are as motivated, interesting or fun as the students who are part of the Career Academy scheme. The scheme provides myself and others in my organisation with a chance to not only share our thoughts and views and help to shape the next generations. Additionally, it gives us the chance to see things through new eyes and challenge our perceptions. It is a massively rewarding scheme - both for us as an organisation and for us as individuals

Although Ian was incredibly timid upon starting his internship here at Lloyds, he quickly grew accustomed to the role and would complete tasks quickly and confidently. I hope Ian will capitalise on his new found confidence, as if he works as hard in the future as he did here at Lloyds, I'm confident that he will succeed on whatever path he chooses to embark upon.
